Meet the man behind “Adventure Time”

The NBCL is excited to welcome Matt Forsythe, author, illustrator and graphic designer to speak to tweens and teens about his experience as the lead designer for the wildly popular tv show Adventure Time on the Cartoon Network and what storyboarding is all about.

Since Adventure Time premiered in 2010, the Cartoon Network show has gained huge popularity amongst viewers of all ages for its unique brand of humour and animation style. The show has drawn in millions of viewers and dozens of illustrious guest stars, including George Takei, Neil Patrick Harris and Andy Samberg.

Matt Forsythe illustrated multiple picture books including the upcoming The Gold Leaf (spring, 2017) written by Kirsten Hall and The Bad Mood and the Stick (fall, 2017), written by Lemony Snicket. His award-winning comic Ojingogo was published by Drawn & Quarterly in 2008.

Matt lives in Montreal and is the 2017 Mordecai Richler Writer in Residence at Concordia University.
